

Huynh Quang Tin

POSITION                      Lecturer and Head of Department

ORGANIZATION              Mekong Delta Development Research Institute, Cantho University

EDUCATION

PhD. Production Ecology and Resource Conservation - Wageningen University of the Netherlands, 2009

M.Sc., Natural Resource Management and Sustainable Agriculture - Agricultural University of Norway, 1998

B.Sc., Crop Science - Cantho University of Vietnam, 1983

Dr. Tin studied Production Ecology and Resource Conservation and received Ph.D. from Wageningen University of the Netherlands in 2009. With his research background in Rice breeding and Seed production systems, Participatory Technology Development (PTD) and Rice based cropping systems, he has been involving in various research projects linking and transferring agricultural knowledge from scientists in universities and research institutes to local farmers in Vietnam. He also served as Technical Consultant to different organizations within Vietnam and international like Wageningen University and Research (WUR), World Wild Foundation (WWF), and Danida Program for Vietnam.

Currently, he is a university lecturer for Natural Resources Management and Sustainable Agriculture, Production Ecology and Climate Change Adaptation, and Cropping System at Cantho University, Vietnam.