

RUKUI HUANG

Dr. Rukui Huang is a plant scientist of the Vegetable Research Institute, Guangxi Academy of Agricultural Sciences. Her majority work focus in Cucurbits breeding, vegetable cultivation method development and seed science and technology.

Dr. Rukui Huang has started her career at Guangxi Academy of Agricultural Sciences since the year 1991 after she graduated from South China Agricultural University. She pursued her studies at Kasetsart University, Thailand and completed her Doctoral Degree in 2006. Dr. Huang has become Senior Researcher since 2009.

During her career as a researcher, she has been awarded as The Youth Scientific Award of Guangxi and The New Century Talent of Guangxi in 2009. Moreover, for 3 consecutive years, 2011-2013, Dr. Huang won the Realistic and Outstanding Achievements Award for Youth of China Association of Science and Technology, The 3rd price of Guangxi Award for Science and Technology Progress (tropical vegetable seed science and technology) and the 1st Price of Hainan Award for Science and Technology (vegetable breeding and cultivation technology development for subtropical and tropical region to meet market demand of northern China)